

Boxing – Chantelle faces major test in Taylor undercard

Women's boxing is on the up and we picture a top Scottish amateur boxer in training at Lochend gym in Edinburgh. Picture by Nigel Duncan Media

Unbeaten super featherweight prospect Chantelle Cameron will make her second appearance as a professional on the undercard of next Saturday's showdown between Josh Taylor and Ohara Davies at the Braehead Arena in Glasgow.

The Northampton puncher impressed the crowd at the Motorpoint Arena in Cardiff in her debut in May 26 which highlighted the potential of the 26-year-old.

Cameron produced six dominant rounds of precision punching to the head and body against debut opponent Karina Kopinska.

In Glasgow, Cameron faces Bojana Libiszewska, a Polish boxer who has never been stopped in her 27-fight career to date.

In the main event, undefeated Commonwealth super lightweight champion Josh Taylor from the Lothians square-up against England's unbeaten WBC Silver champion Ohara Davies.

The chief support bout features Edinburgh's undefeated prospect Jason Easton who boxes highly-ranked Belgian contender Steve Jamoye for the vacant IBO Intercontinental super lightweight title.