

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2017 – Jagged Little Singalong

It's the tribute show you never knew you needed: Alanis Morissette's 90s classic, Jagged Little Pill, performed in its entirety, from "You Oughta Know" to "Ironic" and back again for your nostalgic pleasure.

Equal parts silly and fun, for two nights only, expect an evening of angsty shouty singalong, musical reinventions, and one or two earnest covers of the alternative album that smashed the charts across the world in 1995.

The ridiculously fun show features musicians Tom Dickins, Alison Avron, Maeve Marsden and Libby Wood, bringing you 90s fashions and teenage angst in a pun filled production sung with love, but also a healthy amount of irony.

This show is resonating with audiences across Australia and sells-out everywhere it's performed.

Edinburgh audiences are encouraged to bring their A-game angsty shout-sing voices to celebrate the 21st birthday of (arguably) the best album of the 90s.

Venue: Gilded Balloon Teviot – Wine Bar | 11th and 12th August 2017 | 9.45pm (60 mins)

Tickets here