

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2017 – Lucy Hopkins Powerful Women are About

Welcome to a vibrational revolution of being, channelled by a goddess.

Part electro-ritual, part theremin-experiment, part light-fantastic.

Lucy Hopkins embodies the Fringe's most relentlessly in-touch-with-herself spirit guide – swinging raven hair, intense staring eyes, and physically retching with the sheer effort of simply existing. Inspired by a retelling of human history that takes in ancient Greek concepts of mythos and logos, the uncanny wisdom of witches and the renaissance rejection of superstition, she is painfully aware that our collective energies are dangerously unbalanced

Harmony can only be restored through the reunification of the sacred feminine with the sacred masculine. The ritual required to enact this spiritual reckoning demands physical contortions, symbolic acts, and the audience's total commitment to co-creating a new reality. Everything we do has meaning – if you know how to read the signs.

Powerful Women Are About is ultra-conscious comedy by an award-winning, internationally-touring, terribly present clown. Come as you are. Leave transformed.

This is Lucy Hopkins' second solo show. Her debut show Le Foulard (The Veil) won Best Theatre Performer Adelaide Fringe 2013, Prague Fringe Creative Award and Bedfringe Pick of the Fest culminating in a run at Soho Theatre.

Lucy performs with and directs companies and artists across Europe including:

Spymonkey (UK), Caroline Horton (UK), Compagnie Interface (Switzerland), Entre

Escombros (Spain), Babakas (UK). She is also known as Aunty Val in Spencer

Jones's Christmas short (Sky TV) and Charlie Chuck's assistant Mary.

Lucy is performing Powerful Women Are About as part of Heroes of Fringe. Heroes of Fringe champions creativity and financially sustainable practice for artists, and pioneered the Pay What You Want model at the Edinburgh Fringe. For more information on the Heroes Manifesto and their 66 show line up for 2017 go to: www.heroesoffringe.com

Edinburgh Fringe: 3 – 27 August (except 9 & 16), 5pm, Heroes @ The Hive (Venue 313)