

Edinburgh in August – ‘The A Club’

Ever in pursuit of rigorous journalistic integrity The Edinburgh Reporter feels duty bound to investigate the return of live music and cocktail venue, ‘The A Club’ at this year’s Edinburgh Festival.

After a sell-out debut last August, we are informed that they will be back as part of the world’s largest arts festival.

Behoved as we are to accept their invitation to savour the atmosphere of ‘The A Club’ with its unique mix of relaxed music, table-service food and drinks in the exclusive The Merchants’ Hall in Edinburgh, their wide selection of crafted gins and whiskies will in no way cloud our our objective reportage.

An oasis of calm from the hustle and bustle of Edinburgh during the Fringe Festival it may well be but we will endeavour to report back!

The A Club’s Patron, Hollywood Actor Brian Cox commented:

“I am delighted to see the return of ‘The A Club’ to the 2017 Edinburgh Fringe. Having been in involved with the Fringe since its inception, the diversity and quality of their offering is unrivalled. I was delighted to take part in last year’s ‘A Club’ and I am looking forward to being in town this August to again enjoy their world class hospitality.”
