

Extra date added to 'A Field Of Our Own' at Easter Road

An extra date has been added to 'A Field Of Our Own', a play written by Duncan Kidd telling the story of the first twenty years of Hibernian and of the people who made it happen.

Tickets for all other shows have sold out, and so a final date has been added on Wednesday 16 August.

The project is being run by Leith based theatre company Strange Town, as part of the GameChanger Public Social Partnership which involves the Club, Hibernian Community Foundation and NHS Lothian as well as dozens of other organisations.

Those coming along should note that seating will be limited during the performances to those who most need it, that those attending should dress warmly (as it can be cool inside the East Stand even in summer), and that there may be some strong language used during performances.

Tickets are available via the Hibernian FC website
