James McKenna jailed for stabbing uncle during argument over ownership of dog

A man who attempted to murder his uncle in a dispute over a dog has been jailed at Glasgow High Court.

James McKenna was handed a nine year sentence after being found guilty at the end of May this year.

The incident happened in Muirhouse Place East in the Drylaw area of the city on Hogmanay 2015.

McKenna stabbed David Forbes, then aged 53, multiple times after an argument about ownership of the dog.

Detective Inspector Grant Johnston of Edinburgh CID said: ""McKenna carried out the attack on his victim without any thought for the consequences or the seriousness of the injuries.

"It resulted in a robust investigation by detectives which has led to him being jailed.

"I would also like to thank everyone who assisted the police during the inquiry."
