

Sewer works in Kirkliston begin tomorrow

Road users in Kirkliston are being advised of a lane closure to enable Scottish Water to lay a new sewer.

A section of Main Street at the junction of the Newliston Arms hotel will be down to one lane with temporary traffic lights in place from 17 July for around two weeks while the work is carried out.

Bill Elliot, Scottish Water's regional communities team manager, said: "When planning this road traffic management on Main Street, we liaised closely with the City of Edinburgh Council.

"This road traffic management is essential while we carry out this important work and we will do all we can to complete it as quickly as possible.

"We apologise for any inconvenience and thank affected residents, road users and the community for their patience and understanding."
