

Firefighters attacked whilst attending emergency call in Dalkeith

A police investigation is underway after two firefighters were attacked by a group of youths whilst attending an emergency call at Lawfield Farm, Dalkeith around 8.40pm on Friday night.

They were not injured as a result of the incident.

Police are urging anyone who has information to get in touch.

Inspector Neil Mitchell said: "It is extremely disappointing that colleagues from the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service have been assaulted whilst attending an emergency call. It is totally unacceptable to attack emergency service workers who are there to protect and support our communities when in need.

"I would urge anyone who has information to get in touch with Police Scotland on 101 quoting reference number 4036 of 3 November or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111 if you wish to remain anonymous.
