

Hearts Game ON as Tynecastle Gets Its Safety Certificate

Hearts have announced that Sunday's Ladbrokes Premiership game against Partick Thistle at Tynecastle Park WILL go ahead as scheduled.

City of Edinburgh officials have been at Tynecastle most of Saturday waiting to issue the necessary safety certificate for the new stand.

After an agonisingly long day, Hearts finally announced that a temporary certificate had been issued and the game with Partick Thistle would go ahead as planned, albeit subject to a final check at 8.00am tomorrow. However, the club don't anticipate any problems with this.

Kick off for Hearts much-anticipated return to Tynecastle is 3.00pm.
