GAMEFIELD HOUSE AT CRIEFF IS IDEAL FOR THE SMALL BESPOKE WEDDING SECTOR

- 5 star house has ample accommodation, large garden and private chef

If you are looking for a small, bespoke wedding in a stunning exclusive use house just over an hour from the Capital, look no further than Gamefield House in Crieff, a new venue joining the Scottish scene.

A five star, privately owned house sleeping ten with its own separate Indie House to the side sleeping another four, Gamefield offers easy commuting from the Capital. The spacious garden gives ample opportunity for beautiful photographs, whilst the beautifully designed and highly specified house, with private chef and concierge service, provides the ideal venue for an intimate ceremony surrounded by close friends and family. There is enough room for everyone to stay for a few days for a longer celebration.

“There are a limited number of five star exclusive use venues across the Central Belt. Particularly as relates to weddings, brides who have not been able to book several years in advance will find that most places are fully booked, certainly at weekends. We are saying to them come to Gamefield, we are here with a five star venue which offers real flexibility and is ideal for those who like to put their own individual stamp on a wedding,” said House Manager Tracey Oates.

Those booking a wedding at Gamefield will find that they are not tied into any specific caterer or drinks supplier; there is a flexible deposit payment scheme; late check out as standard and no corkage charges for 2018.

“It’s popular to extend the celebration to include a BBQ afterwards,” said Tracey. “The House is available on a self catering basis. You can use Gamefield for an exclusive stag and hen event prior to the big day. We can arrange all your activities including golf; spa treatments; luxury shopping; shooting and country sports and cookery demos. We are just a short distance away from Gleneagles too.”
