

Do the Dash at the Commie

Coming soon to the Royal Commonwealth Pool, a new inflatable assault course on water.

Dare you Do the Dash?

The AquaDash is Edinburgh Leisure's newest attraction and the very first in Scotland. It is an inflatable playground on water, perfect for all fun-seekers aged 6 years plus.

☒ Suitable for all fitness levels, it is the ideal activity for the full family to enjoy. Participants will slide, climb and bounce their way through nine thrilling challenges, beating each one and racing friends and family to victory. There's a bonkers bridge, slippery slide, wacky wiggle discs and adventurous action tower to name a few.

Opening on 12 February 2018, in time for half-term, booking is recommended.

Claire Rusack, Leisure Manager at Edinburgh Leisure said: "AquaDash is fun but without the sun. Whilst we might not be blessed with wonderful continental weather, AquaDash promises all the fun of an amusement water park but indoors in a safe environment that can be enjoyed by all family. And it promises a good workout at the same time.

"Whilst you need to be 6 years upwards to enjoy the activity, families attending with smaller children can keep them entertained at Clambers, our water-themed soft play area, with its adjoining party room and there is also Café Refresh, which has great views overlooking our main pool and serves a range of hot meals and delicious snacks."
