

Wild Things are happening at the museum this half term

Visitors to the National Museum of Scotland this week can enjoy a variety of animal-themed activities inspired by the Wildlife Photographer of the Year exhibition, thanks to players of People's Postcode Lottery.

Sadie and Stella Smith aged 6 & 9 explore the Animal World Gallery at the National Museum of Scotland, Chambers Street with the help of Joanna Laird, Programmes Assistant, People's Postcode Lottery.

Wild Things February Half Term is a week of activities at the National Museum of Scotland supported by funding from players of People's Postcode Lottery, including Gallery Safaris, Selfie Safari Trails and Meet the Expert sessions which will encourage children to explore the galleries and make new discoveries.

Wild Things February Half Term runs until Friday 16 February 2018.

Photos by Neil Hanna Photography
www.neilhannaphotography.co.uk
07702 246823