

Flybe's summer schedule now underway from Edinburgh

Flybe has already started its summer schedule with flights available on this timetable till the end of October.

The airline has now completed its first year of flying from Edinburgh to Heathrow with recognition for being best in terms of noise and emissions at the London end.

Flybe CEO Christine Ourmières at Heathrow last year on the inaugural flight.

There are four flights to London each day with additional weekend flights on Saturdays and Sundays now available.

To keep you happy in flight the airline offers a refreshed (and refreshing) menu including itsu satay rice noodles and snack boxes with a vegan option.

With its codeshare partners Flybe can offer seamless long haul connections in its One Stop to the World programme.

Roy Kinnear, Flybe's Chief Commercial Officer, comments: "We are pleased to be starting two new routes as part of our 2018 Summer schedule that includes Venice – a brand new destination for Flybe. We have also improved frequency on a number of key routes to give greater flexibility and choice to passengers from their local regional airport.

"We are passionate about connecting people and communities and offering the widest choice of destinations possible with time saving, punctual and affordable travel."
