

At the King's Theatre – Agatha Christie's Love from a Stranger

King's Theatre Edinburgh | 5 – 9 June 2017 | by Agatha Christie & Frank Vosper | Directed by Lucy Bailey

Fools rush in angels fear to tread. An adage that the beautiful Cecily Harrington learns much too late – much to her cost.

A whirlwind romance with a handsome and charming stranger sweeps her off her feet. Her heart all a flutter, her head in the clouds she recklessly abandons her old life to settle in the remote and blissful surroundings of a country cottage. However, her newfound love is not all that he seems...wooded, she's dunnit now!

High voltage thrills with a shocking twist, this edge-of-your-seat, nerves on a knife-edge, rarely seen thriller by the UK's greatest crime writer is rediscovered in a brand-new production by Lucy Bailey (Gaslight, Dial M for Murder).

Be careful who you wish for

A Fiery Angel in association with Royal & Derngate,

Northampton presentation

Tickets here