With the UK Parliament in recess, Ms Jardine is using the extra time at home in Edinburgh to meet as many constituents as possible and discuss the issues that matter to them.

She will also be meeting local charities and businesses.

Ms Jardine said: “It’s been a busy year in Parliament. I’ve been using my time in London to fight for the things which constituents have told me really matter to them.

“And of course I’ve been working with Lib Dem colleagues to pave the way for an Exit from Brexit.

“But now it’s summer and I’m delighted that I’ll have more time to spend at home in Edinburgh meeting constituents.

“If you’ve got something you’d like to talk to me about, take a look at where I’ll be over the next week and drop by for a chat – I’ll be very happy to see you!”
