

Golf – new guide to East Lothian courses

Golfer Paul Broadhurst, a recent winner in East Lothian

A new guide for golfers keen to test themselves against courses in East Lothian has been launched.

The move comes as the area, nicknamed Scotland's Golf Coast, gets ready to host three championships, the ASI Scottish Open, the ASI Scottish Ladies Open and the Staysure Scottish Seniors Open.

The World Hickory Open will be held in East Lothian later this summer.

Copies of the new guide have been distributed and an online copy of the brochure will also be available on the Scotland's Golf Coast's website next week. Key into www.golfeastlothian.com

The area has 21 courses along 30 miles of coastline offering choice to golfers of all standards and tastes.

TV pundit Andrew Coltart, a Ryder Cup player and European Tour winner, said East Lothian was designed by Mother Nature and possessed some of the best golfing terrain in the world.
