

Renewed appeal after woman injured on pedestrian crossing

Police are renewing their appeal for information after a woman was struck by a cyclist on a pedestrian crossing between Gayfield Square and London Road around 7.25pm on Monday evening.

The 54-year-old was taken to the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary with a head injury.

The cyclist stopped, but did not leave contact details, and officers continue to conduct enquiries to trace him.

Police are now able to release a more detailed description of him as being a man in his early twenties, with sandy brown hair and a cut under his left eye which was slightly scabbed over.

He was wearing a dark grey tracksuit and what appeared to be some sort of black body warmer.

PC Denise Humphrey of Edinburgh's Road Policing Unit said: "I want to thank everyone who has come forward so far and would urge anyone who recognises the cyclist's description to get in touch.

"Similarly, if the cyclist see's this appeal, I'd also ask him to contact us and help us to establish the full circumstances surrounding this incident."

Anyone with information can call Police Scotland on 101, quoting incident number 3698 of 23rd July.
