

A1: Britain's Longest Road returns to the TV screens next week

A1: Britain's Longest Road returns to the TV screens next week for Series Three, which is due to be broadcast at 11am on BBC One from next Monday 24 September for two weeks until Friday 5 October.

From Monday 8 October, BBC One is also planning to repeat five episodes from Series One which will again air at 11am each weekday.

This documentary series follows the people working round the clock on Britain's longest and most iconic road as they strive to keep traffic moving and the public safe.

This includes a number of Police Scotland Road Policing crews, and each episode usually includes several segments showing their work.

Each episode is available on the BBC iPlayer shortly after transmission.