

Woman's body found following fire in caravan

A woman's body has been found after a fire in a caravan located just off the A1 at Innerwick near Dunbar at 2.35am on Saturday morning.

Police are not treating the death as suspicious.

Enquiries are ongoing to establish the woman's identity.

A Police Scotland spokesperson said: "Police in East Lothian were called to a report of a caravan on fire just off the A1 at Innerwick near Dunbar around 2.35am on Saturday.

"Emergency services attended and when the fire was extinguished, sadly the body of a woman was found within.

"Police Scotland is following a positive line of inquiry in relation to identification pending further forensic investigations.

“A joint investigation is also ongoing with the Scottish Fire and Rescue Service into the cause of the fire but the death is believed to be non-suspicious.

“A report has been submitted to the procurator fiscal.”
