

Gorgie Farm's Olive the duck goes viral on Twitter!

A Tweet by user, fagocytosis @Yournameistylr, about Gorgie City Farm's resident duck, Olive, has captured the imagination of Twitter users. The Tweet now has over 39,000 likes, 11,000 retweets, as well as comments in a number of different languages.

Gorgie City Farm's "very special and unusual duck" has an information poster not unlike a dating profile. She likes people, eating snails and worms, rain, going for a walk...that's about it!

She does NOT like other ducks, guinea pigs, tortoises, rabbits, any other animals, or anything else!

Olive the Duck is a mood pic.twitter.com/qZq0Vx9H7J

– fagocytosis (@Yournameistylr) 16 February 2019

Retweets from Gorgie City Farm say they're "delighted our Olive has become a Twitter sensation".

Iain Herbert, Chief Executive at Gorgie City Farm, said, "We all knew that Olive was famous on the Farm and we're thrilled she's receiving the recognition she deserves. We'd love to see #olivetheduck trending on social media and Olive soaring to global stardom!"

Gorgie City Farm is a free-entry, working Farm in the heart of Edinburgh. You can pop along to visit Olive from 9:30am to 4:00pm every day.

Just in case you are wondering what she looks like in action.....

Thanks mate, she's ace pic.twitter.com/7U43LzksNU

– Amber □ (@AmberIsaacs7) 17 February 2019