

Scottish Motorcycle Show 2019

The Scottish Motorcycle Show is coming to the Royal Highland Centre, Edinburgh on 9 March 2019 for two days.

The event will be jam-packed with lots of different shows and demonstrations. Timetables and schedules for the Scottish Stunt Freestyle section of the event is already looking busy for both days so it is sure to keep you entertained.

The latest models of motorcycles will take centre stage at the show where the public can see what is newly available.

There will also be a Classic Bike Hall displaying Scotland's biggest collection of classic motorcycles from the past 80 years. There are already over 70 bikes booked in.

The 'Dalbeattie Destroyer' Ian Simpson was named first of many guests set to attend the event and with a full schedule, the event is set to be very impressive for those who attend.

A new section of the event for 2019 is the Built not Bought Custom Bike Show. The public can enter into any of the categories of the Bike Show if they wish to participate by contacting James at JM Customs direct.

Advanced tickets cost £14 for anyone over 12 years old and purchasing on the day of the event will see ticket prices rise to £18.

To find out more information on the event, visit the Scottish Motorcycle Show website.