

'Colour Psychology' Photography Exhibition by InfraRED Collective

A group of third year photography students at Edinburgh Napier University, known as 'InfraRED Collective' will host an exhibition at Whitespace Gallery at the end of the month.

The theme is colour psychology, within the chosen colour of red. They explain that red is such a strong colour, yet we all view it differently.

The body of work will be produced by five individuals Grace Brandon, Stella Shek, Jenny Spence, Laura Sutton and Erin Veitch, each focusing on a specific mood or emotion on how we perceive the colour of red.

Examples include 'anger', 'love' and 'luck'.

The exhibition runs from the opening night on Friday 29th March 7-9pm until 4th April.
