

Scottish politicians back charity helping young people in Uganda

Deputy First Minister John Swinney, Scottish Liberal Democrat leader Willie Rennie, Scottish Labour leader Richard Leonard, co-leader of the Scottish Greens parliamentary group Alison Johnstone and senior Conservative MSP Donald Cameron today posed with giant WEE BOXES outside the Scottish Parliament, Edinburgh, as they gave their backing to the charity's life-changing work around the world's poorest countries.

This year's WEE BOX appeal tells the story of how SCIAF is helping vulnerable young people in Uganda affected by poverty, HIV and AIDS, and the legacy of war to grow food and earn a living so they can support themselves and their families.
