

Dita Von Teese to glam it up in Edinburgh

Dita Von Teese, the American burlesque dancer, singer and actress will head to Edinburgh next year for the only Scottish date on her international tour. Dita Von Teese: Glamazonatrix will see the Queen of Burlesque present extravagant new production numbers.

Von Teese is clearly looking forward to coming to Scotland.

"With the success of my last tour of Europe, I came home more inspired than ever and got straight into building new acts. I am coming back with an even bigger show than I've ever toured with before. Being in these historic theatres with audiences coming dressed to the nines, creates this incredible atmosphere unlike anything I've ever seen before. For me, burlesque has always been about finding my own power and confidence, embracing sensuality and encouraging others to do the same in their own lives. Glamour is the art of creating mystery and allure, and the new Glamazonatrix show embraces all of these qualities" says Von Teese.

She continues, "I feel so fortunate that burlesque has come to symbolise a celebration of beauty and sensuality in many forms, a place where unlikely icons take the stage and inspire others. I'm proud to be a part of the modern burlesque movement and I'm grateful to have the chance to tour with performers that change people's minds about striptease."

The Glamazonatrix
show is a full evening of comedy and sophisticated striptease that celebrates diverse beauty. Von Teese's live shows are world-renowned and draw fans from every corner of the globe.

Dita Von Teese: Glamazonatrix will be at the Edinburgh Playhouse for one night only – Tuesday 28th April 2020. Tickets here
