

Prague Symphony Orchestra in Edinburgh next week

There is a treat in store at The Usher Hall next weekend when The Prague Symphony Orchestra takes to the stage on Sunday afternoon.

Under the direction of Pietari Inkinen the orchestra will be accompanied by a chorus made of up members of Edinburgh Royal Choral Union, Edinburgh University Chamber Choir and also the National Youth Choir of Scotland.

Ester Pavlu

The orchestra brings all its renowned energy and vigour to this extraordinary symphony, under Finnish Chief Conductor and fast-rising star Inkinen. They are joined by the superb Czech mezzo-soprano Ester Pavlů and a chorus for what promises to be a truly unforgettable experience.
