

Remembrance Sunday events

This morning Edinburgh will observe Remembrance Day all across the city.

Scotland's national commemorations will take place at the Stone of Remembrance on the Royal Mile outside the City Chambers.

The Rt Hon Lord Provost and Lord Lieutenant of the City of Edinburgh, Frank Ross, who is the city's Veterans' Champion will be joined by the Rt Hon First Minister Nicola Sturgeon and representatives from Legion Scotland, fellow service charities, the armed forces and public services.

A two minute silence will also be marked tomorrow at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month – a date marking the anniversary of the ending of the First World War in 1918. The city's Armistice Day Service will take place in the Garden of Remembrance in East Princes Street Gardens, where thousands of crosses have been planted in honour of Scotland's war dead.

Lord Provost and Lord Lieutenant Frank Ross said: “On Remembrance Sunday, people the length and breadth of Britain will pay tribute to all those who have fought and died – and who continue to do so – in order to keep this country safe.

“Whether it’s by attending a Remembrance Service or Parade, or by taking a moment of quiet reflection, we can all show our gratitude and appreciation for the enormous sacrifices being made every day on our behalf by so many courageous men and women.

“It fills me with great pride to lay a wreath on behalf of all citizens at Scotland’s national commemorations and to see so many local communities come together in their own ways to pay their respects.”

Included below is a list of some of the Remembrance services and parades taking place across the city on Sunday:

They shall grow not old, as we that are left grow old:

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning

We will remember them.
