

Hibs to face Inverness Caledonian Thistle in Cup quarter final

Hibs will face Inverness Caledonian Thistle at Easter Road in the sixth round of the William Hill Scottish Cup whilst Hearts face Rangers at Tynecastle.

Former Celtic forward Chris Sutton who helped make the draw said.

“Hibernian with the home advantage is maybe one of the easier ones to call with

Jack Ross turning things around there and Inverness facing a long trip, but you never know.

“Hearts against Rangers is a really interesting one, with Rangers losing there in recent times it’s hard to call.

Hibs’ hat trick hero Marc McNulty said: “We’ve definitely got to be looking at winning the cup.

“The club have won it before, Hibs are a big club and we should be winning cups. I know everyone looks at it and thinks Rangers and

Celtic need to be winning everything, but that’s not the case.

“If you are in the hat, you’ve got to believe you can win it and be confident.”

The ties will be played during the weekend of February 29 and March 1.
