

Offices set for new look at South Gyle

Investment and property development company, CEG, is about to refurbish the prime office building Haston House at South Gyle to form new headquarter offices.

The £4.5 million project will include replacement windows and redecoration of the exterior.

The interior will be completely overhauled with modern offices, common and reception rooms. Changing rooms and secure bike storage will be created as well as an onsite coffee server.

The developers say the flexible office suites will be of the highest quality and will range from 4,000 to 70,000 square feet.

Grace Lewis, investment manager at CEG, said: "Our comprehensive refurbishment of Haston House will create flexible, contemporary workspace which will appeal all businesses. We have used our extensive experience in designing workspace with the end tenant in mind, in order to deliver modern, open plan environments which harness productivity helping businesses to attract and retain the best talent. With a focus on wellness, we have created a new benchmark for out-of-town offices."

The work is due to be completed by autumn 2020.
