

New interim CEO appointed to NHS Lothian

Calum Campbell, Chief Executive of NHS Lanarkshire, has been appointed Interim Chief Executive of NHS Lothian.

Mr Campbell will join NHS Lothian on 15 June 2020 for a handover period before taking up the reins on 25 June.

NHS Lothian Chief Executive, Tim Davison, has a period of planned leave before retiring in early August.

Esther Robertson, NHS Lothian Interim Chair said: "NHS Lothian Board members and I would like to thank Tim for his talented leadership and outstanding commitment throughout an exceptional 37 year career in the NHS in Scotland. We wish him a very enjoyable retirement.

"Calum Campbell comes to us as a dedicated and already highly experienced Chief Executive and we look forward to welcoming him to his new role here at NHS Lothian."
