

What's on – Drive in at the Royal Highland Centre featuring Brainiac

This summer will be the year of the drive-in. Tickets are on sale now for Utilita Live from the Drive-in.

This will be an action packed hour of explosions, experiments and stunts. Brainiac Lives is for families and it will be in Edinburgh next month.

This is the show that laughs in the face of science and is based on the science entertainment TV show with a breathless, fun and fact-filled discovery of the wonderful world of science. The high energy experiments will feature exploding dustbins and supercharged spinning chairs. You have been warned.

The live show has entertained many since 2008. All the FAQs are here.

Andy Joyce, Number 1 Brainiac and director of the show said: "It's fantastic to be able to get back to doing what we love best this summer and entertaining families with our much-loved show. There are only 300 spaces in each city so grab your deck chair, pack your picnic, find the car keys and join us for some live theatre!"

Live Nation is reimagining the live experience during a time of social distancing by allowing fans to enjoy concerts and family immersive events in a one-of-a-kind drive-in setting from their own private individual viewing zones next to their cars. Designed to comply with all official guidelines, Utilita

LIVE From The Drive-In will deliver the U.K.'s premier drive-in experience featuring a series of music concerts, theatre performances, comedy shows and family experiences this Summer.
