

The events industry asks for help

#wemakeevents

The events sector urgently needs more support to survive the Covid-19 crisis.

Live events around the world have been devastated, from major festivals and landmark theatres, to grassroots venues and business events. Without major immediate support from government, the entire supply chain is at risk of collapse.

More than 200 workers in the industry gather on Calton Hill in Edinburgh in solidarity to ask for urgent support from the government.

Photos Greg MacVean