Awards made to Edinburgh and the Lothians performing arts venues as part of the £5million open call are as follows:

Assembly (The Roxy), £85,000

Capital Theatres Trust (Festival Theatre and King's Theatre), £250,000

Edinburgh City Council (Usher Hall), £240,450

Howden Park Theatre, £95,000 Leith Theatre, £138,214

Out of the Blue, £67,034

Queen's Hall, £175,000

The Brunton Theatre, £250,000

The Regal, Bathgate, £25,000

Designed to support performing arts venues that cannot yet re-open due to the ongoing impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, the Fund is helping to: Remove the threat of insolvency prior to the end of March 2021 to enable the development and delivery of activity as soon as practicable Allow for specialist / core staff to return from furlough or avoid redundancy to work on future sustainable activity plans Increase commissioning and employment opportunities for freelance artists and creative practitioners (between now and end of March 2021) to support continued public engagement while closed

Iain Munro, CEO, Creative Scotland said: "Despite the ongoing, detrimental impact that the Covid-19 pandemic is having on Scotland's performing arts venues, and on culture as a whole, it is positive that we can offer some funding to help venues navigate these extremely challenging times. I'm also encouraged to see that this funding will help venues across many different parts of Scotland where they form such an important part of the cultural life of local communities."

Jude Henderson, Director of the Federation of Scottish Theatre (FST) said: "We welcome the announcement of these emergency awards to performing arts venues across the country. The funds will help to support the vital work they do in serving communities, providing employment and showcasing Scotland's world class theatre and dance offer, much of which is created by our members."

This news follows the £1,719,000 previously awarded to venues across Edinburgh through the targeted strand of the fund, including Dance Base, Royal Lyceum Theatre Company, The Storytelling Centre/TRACS and Traverse Theatre.
