Golf Competition in association with Edinburgh Leisure – Love Golf? It pays to play at Edinburgh Leisure

For die hard golf fans or even those new to the game who want to keep in the swing of it during the winter, The Edinburgh Reporter have teamed up with Edinburgh Leisure who will give away one of their Winter Golf Memberships to one lucky reader.

And for those not lucky enough to win, Edinburgh Leisure's 'winter golf membership' could be just the deal. It pays to play, with the membership costing just £22.50 per month, compared up to £27.50 that you would pay as a pay-as-you-go customer. So buying a winter golf membership and playing more than once, will mean a saving worth having.

With minimal use of winter greens and no mats, it's the ideal opportunity to keep your golf on par until the summer returns. The beauty of Edinburgh Leisure's winter golf membership is that you won't have to rely on playing just one course. The membership gives you the flexibility and variety to experience up to six different courses in unique locations across the city.

The winter pass is valid until 31 March 2021 and allows access to Edinburgh Leisure's six golf courses. Edinburgh Leisure's 18-hole courses include Braid Hills, Carrick Knowe, Craigentiny, and Silverknowes. For a quicker challenge, Edinburgh Leisure also have two popular 9-hole courses – Portobello and the Wee Braids. From December to February, the Wee Braids closes and some of its holes are incorporated into the main Braid Hills course.

Payable monthly by direct debit until March 2021, different membership options are available including access to all the courses, seven days-a-week, and a five-day membership with access to all courses, Monday to Friday. The membership also gives 20% off other Edinburgh Leisure activities including the gym, swimming, racquet sports and climbing, at the various Edinburgh Leisure venues across the city – so it pays to play.

Some things have changed but customers will still be guaranteed the warm Edinburgh Leisure welcome.

- It is now necessary for all tee times to be booked and paid for in advance. Customers can no longer turn up to play.
- Each player must be played for separately. The booking system lets the golfer and any guests to pay separately for their round.
- Edinburgh Leisure members and cardholders can book a tee time from 9 pm, 8 days in advance. Non-members can still book a tee-time but will need to create an account with Edinburgh Leisure before they can book. They will then be able to book from 9 pm, 7 days in advance.
- Under the current guidelines, only four-balls social golf can be played.

- No changing rooms will be available so golfers are advised to change into their shoes and any outdoor wear whilst at their car and then proceed straight to the starters' office/area.
- Golf guidelines and terms and conditions can be found on the Edinburgh Leisure website – <https://www.edinburghleisure.co.uk/golf-covid-guidelines>
