

Police launch online form to report people breaking coronavirus restrictions

A new online form has been launched by Police Scotland which is directed toward people looking to report others breaking coronavirus restrictions.

The form allows members of the public to report everything from a gathering to individuals or businesses not wearing a face covering.

POLICE
SCOTLAND
POILEAS ALBA

Home / Secure Forms / Covid-19 Reporting form

In an emergency call 999 / For non-emergencies call 101

Covid-19 Reporting form

This form is not for Emergency Reporting.
If there is an emergency please call 999.

We will only accept reports of breaches occurring in Scotland.

All fields marked with (required) are mandatory and must be filled in.

Is the breach taking place in Scotland :

Yes

Is the breach happening now :

Yes

Who or what does this involve :

A group of people

How many people are involved

Please make sure you understand the rules around gatherings before you get in touch with us, to make sure there really is a breach.

Please select

Mainland Scotland is currently under level four restrictions which makes it illegal to travel between other local authorities or to invite other people over to your house for an non-essential reason.

Police Scotland said in a Facebook statement: "Our online reporting form for reporting #COVID19 breaches is now live."

"Make sure you understand the rules around gatherings for your area, via The Scottish Government, before you get in touch with us."

Officers have also asked the public not to call 101 or 999 for guidance on current restrictions as this could tie up call-handlers and therefore ultimately cost lives.