With all their various activities Grassmarket mentor, educate and support people who need employment, to develop their skills and improve their health and wellbeing. They have a café which serves the best homemade soup, an events and catering side, furniture making and tartan textiles at the centre on Candlemaker Row. They also usually run the café at the Church of Scotland HQ on George Street and cater for the people working at St James Quarter.

They have volunteers who work alongside their vulnerable members and help them find confidence through experience.
