

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2021 – Venue 244 Alison Kinnaird

Alison Kinnaird is a Scottish glass artist and she is staging an exhibition during this year's Fringe featuring a range of her work.

The exhibition is at Shillinghill which is a light and airy converted church where the artist says it is easy to observe all Covid regulations to keep visitors safe. Private views are also available by arrangement.

Kinnaird's work has been displayed in the Scottish National Portrait Gallery, The Scottish Parliament and The Museum of Scotland. She produced this work for the centenary of the end of the First World War.

Alison Kinnaird MBE with her UNKNOWN exhibition in 2018 PHOTO ©The Edinburgh Reporter

If you wish then take the Borders Railway to Gorebridge and on a good day it is a pleasant two mile walk to Temple.

Further details here.

