

Ideas for National Afternoon Tea Week

It will be Afternoon Tea Week from 9-15 August 2021, when the cucumber sandwich comes into its own along with as many types of tea that you can shake a tea strainer at.

Scotland's top afternoon tea destinations are now polishing champagne flutes and filling the cake stands ahead of what they hope will be a busy National Afternoon Tea week this August. Here are some suggestions for Edinburgh and beyond.

Edinburgh's five-star Prestonfield House spreads its wings with brand-new Peacock Afternoon Tea

Prestonfield House – Peacock Afternoon Tea

Priestfield Road, Edinburgh EH16 5UT

Set in 20 acres of beautiful gardens and only five minutes from the city centre, Edinburgh's Prestonfield House offers the peace and privacy of a country estate right in the centre of town. This summer guests can take full advantage of the hotel's lavish grounds and enjoy their tea, hot savouries and home-made scones al fresco. Afternoon tea is now served outdoors on the terrace and in the gardens, where the resident peacocks are known to pay a flying visit.

Menu highlights include haggis bonbons, rustic thyme and apple sausage rolls, and sandwiches with Prestonfields' honey-roast gammon and Dijon mustard. After these savoury goodies, choose from strawberry tarts, salted caramel éclairs, orange and lemon carrot cakes, and white chocolate and redcurrant macarons to enjoy with a selection of teas including Prestonfield's own unique blends.

Price list:

Afternoon tea – £35 per person

Champagne afternoon tea – £45 per person

Availability:

Served daily from 12:00pm-7:00pm

Gleneagles – Beatrix Potter-themed Glendevon Afternoon Tea

The Gleneagles Hotel, Auchterarder PH3 1NF

One of Scotland's most iconic afternoon tea venues is adding some fun to its traditional Glendevon afternoon tea this summer, with the launch of a Beatrix Potter-themed menu for the enjoyment of both adults and children. Although a delicious new menu, tea is still served in the stunning Glendevon Room, where guests can relax and take in the hotel's stunning greenery.

The new menu, inspired by the author's childhood holidays to Perthshire, includes Johnny Town Mouse's pea and potato croquettes, Little Pig Robinsons crumpet and crab, and Herdwick lamb sausage rolls with Mr McGregor's cabbage. Sweet treats include a Squirrel Nutkin's fruit and nut slice and a 'hiding behind the blackcurrant bush' currant bun.

Price list:

Afternoon tea – £50 per person (£25 for children)

Champagne afternoon tea – £67 per person

Rosé Champagne afternoon tea – £68 per person
