

New Edinburgh venues showing films during the French Film Festival UK

The French Film Festival has grown over three decades to include locations all over the UK from Inverness to Plymouth. And Edinburgh played a central role in its development.

A typical festival screens in large and small venues in more than 35 UK towns and cities. Additional venues have come on board as the established festival celebrates its 30th anniversary.

As we all know the original Edinburgh venue, The Filmhouse, is currently closed. The three venues in the capital which are showing films during the festival are the Dominion Cinema, Institut Français Écosse, and Summerhall.

There are also screenings at Glasgow Film Theatre. And with Curzon Home Cinema you can also watch from home.

The main Festival website is here. The full programme is below.
