

Pandora opens at Fort Kinnaird creating 12 new jobs

A new name has been introduced to Fort Kinnaird with Pandora opening a new branch there.

The shop lies next to Waterstones and features the full Pandora collection including Diamonds by Pandora, free engraving on a number of items.

For a limited time shoppers will receive a special edition tote bag along with their purchases.

Liam Smith, Centre Director at Fort Kinnaird, said: “Pandora is a brilliant addition to the centre, bringing with it a great range of jewellery which we know will prove very popular with our shoppers. It joins us at the perfect time in the run up to Christmas, with plenty of gift options to choose from!”

Pandora’s Property Director, Andrew Milner-Walker, said, “We are very excited to have a new store at Fort Kinnaird and have worked closely with the development team to ensure we bring a brand-new experience to the centre.

“This store features our brand-new Evoke fitout and is the first of its kind in Scotland. The new store design offers customers the opportunity to try on products and browse our extensive range of jewellery with ease. We believe customers will really enjoy the experience, having already had so many positive comments and excitement from the public during the fitout.”

Twelve new roles have been created in the new store, and Pandora is still actively recruiting sales assistants positions, presenting more opportunities for the local community.

For more information, visit:
<https://careers.pandoragroup.com/>.

Engraving

