

Paris Attractions for Fashion Lovers

The fashion capital of the world is Paris. One of the earliest nations to influence a change in fashion was France. Modelling and fashion design became an art form as a result of French fashion companies like Jean Paul Gaultier, Dior, Chanel, and other well-known brands. Therefore, it is not unexpected that holiday destinations for fashionistas frequently include Paris.

If the mix of Paris and fashion appeals to you, start making travel arrangements as soon as you can. Prioritize everything and carefully consider each action. Book your accommodation, airport transfers, and flights to Paris. Don't forget to arrange transportation before your trip; for instance, AtoB airport transfers will help you save a lot of time. When you land at Charles de Gaulle airport, an airport cab will be there to greet you and carry you and your luggage to your temporary lodging.

And last but not least, take along our list of intriguing museums, stores, and boutiques to visit in order to immerse yourself in the global fashion industry.

Cité de la Mode et du Design

In 2004, the docks' former function as industrial warehouses was transformed into the Cité de la Mode et du Design. Fashion and modern art exhibitions and activities are held here all year round. So, the City of Fashion and Design is waiting for you if you like the fashion industry and wish to relax in Paris. Whenever possible, take an airport taxi directly to the exhibit.

Musée des Arts Décoratifs

The largest display area in the world is situated in the Museum of Decorative Arts, that was established in 1864. The fashion division organizes transient exhibitions because the museum's collections lack a permanent exhibition.

FrenchTrotters

Despite being just four years old, this Parisian fashionista hotspot has already established itself as one of the most well-known in the city. Everything from footwear to hats can be purchased here, making it appealing to both men and women.

Short-term performances

It's acceptable if you can't obtain a ticket to a fashion show. You get to pick the temporary exhibitions. These programs focus on a certain era of fashion or fashion designer. Before you begin planning your trip to Paris and booking the airport transfer, browse through the Officiel des Spectacles to determine which shows are now the best in the city. You will undoubtedly find one or more fashion exhibitions there.

Saint-Ouen

Physically or emotionally, it is impossible to tour the seven hectares-largest market in the globe in a single day. Too many intriguing and varied items in various shapes, sizes, and colors are present. There are 16 little markets in Saint-Ouen, and each year, 11 million people attend them all.

Forum des Halles

The oldest commercial district in Paris, Forum des Halles, recently underwent renovations that only enhanced its excellence. It is situated in the first district of Paris, where you can get using AtoB airport transfer, right in the city's heart, and it has more than 160 shops and stores. The mall features several foreign brand retailers in addition to excellent French names.

Galleries Lafayette

Galleries Lafayette is a renowned large magasin that is worth seeing. It will be a terrific addition to your stroll to continue seeing French architecture at the shop on Boulevard Haussmann, which is close to the Opera Garnier, you can go there by airport taxi. Of addition to being a significant historical monument, the renowned dome (Coupole) in Galleries Lafayette is a must-see if you want an Instagram-worthy shot. You might spend hours browsing this store, but the products, which range from delicatessen to luxury clothing and cosmetics, are likely to please you as well.

Avoid the shops around the Champs Elysees if you want to buy clothing in Paris since they are quite pricey and overrun with visitors. You can get products of high quality for less money in other areas.

Photo by Anthony DELANOIX on Unsplash