

Five things you need to know today

Critical Mass Edinburgh

If you are driving in the city centre on Saturday then do not be alarmed if you meet hundreds of cyclists riding together as one group.

They are a friendly bunch, waving and smiling to all drivers – and they love the ones who peep their horns.

It is a good-natured gathering of cyclists calling out for safer cycling, and takes place every last Saturday of the month, meeting at Middle Meadow Walk, and setting off from there on a different route each month. This week it is going to be the Stockbridge Saunter and The Bike Station will be there from 1pm offering some advice on bike maintenance before the start.

There will be loud music adding to the fun for the cyclists and hopefully also the passers by.

Critical Mass is a worldwide movement which began in San Francisco and it is a way of cycling safely through the city's streets – there is safety in numbers after all. The group will ride as if they are one vehicle – so marshalls hold back other traffic at junctions until all cyclists pass through. But it does not take too long.

The idea is to highlight that some of the people who take part would not normally cycle that route on their own, and is a call to councils and governments that safe infrastructure is needed.

If you would like to join then get on your bike and meet others at Middle Meadow Walk anytime after 1 and then join the ride which will set off at 2pm.

And in case you think it was last week that was Pedal on Parliament which always goes on the shorter route from Chambers Street to Holyrood.

Beltane

If you have a strong enough constitution to get up onto Calton Hill then Sunday night would be a colourful experience for you. There will be glowing bright fires, the pounding of drums, and a cavalcade of characters emerging onto the hill to bring about the end of the long nights. And it all goes on until the early hours of the morning.

Local Bike Shop Day

It is Local Bike Shop Day on Saturday when you are encouraged to go and visit your local bike whop which sells you your bikes and looks after them for you – and tell them how much you love them.

It is the one day a year when independent bike shops can come together to celebrate their distinctive culture. It follows Record Store Day only last weekend and is of course an idea born in Brooklyn.

It may be a fledgling day here but there should be some social media action. Follow @LBSDayUK on Twitter.

New York bound

Samba Drumming band Pulse of the Place will lead Tartan Day Parade in the Big Apple

By PHYLIS STEPHEN

THE 25TH New York City Tartan Day Parade will be led down Sixth Avenue on 15 April by Portobello's own Gail Porter accompanied by around 30 young people from Edinburgh. They will all be wearing World Fair Trade Tartan which Tania Pramschuler Director of Hand Up Events uses to promote Scotland in its tenth year as a Fair Trade Nation.

As part of the band's fundraising efforts thirty young drummers accompanied by Gail, marched across the Forth Road Bridge, drumming all the way. And, in what is being called Bridge to Bridge, they will also parade and drum over the Brooklyn Bridge when they are in the US.

Pulse of the Place, based in the capital, is a youth samba drumming band and has been in existence for about 15 years. Previously, the group has been part of the entertainment at the 2012 Paralympics, and has toured to places such as Brighton Manchester and Liverpool.
