

Edinburgh's Hogmanay begins today – day by day listings here

Four days of festivities ushering in the New Year begin this evening with the Torchlight Procession and will continue until New Year's Day.

It is 30 years since Pete Irvine's Unique Events set out a programme for everyone in Edinburgh to enjoy, moving the crowds away from the Tron where they had traditionally gathered on Hogmanay. From the days when everything closed down around New Year, Edinburgh is now the venue for the biggest party to usher in the New Year.

As a side benefit all fundraising from the four days will be paid to charity Social Bite, who help homeless people and who are working to stop homelessness.

Unique is again part of the partnership with Assembly which has taken the organisation of the New Year programme back under the control of an Edinburgh-based organisation.

Day by Day programme

▪ 29 December 2023

- The packed programme will begin on Friday with the Torchlight Procession blazing a trail through the city from the Meadows to Castle Terrace. The procession will be led by Shetland's South Mainland Up Helly Aa' Jarl Squad and there will be entertainment beforehand in the Meadows with fire performers, street theatre, pipe bands and drummers. The event will end with an Avenue of Fire on Castle Terrace.

Ho Ho Hogmanay will take place from 8pm to 9.30pm at Assembly Rooms on George Street with host Emmanuel Snub, Fred MacAulay, Larry Dean and Susie McCabe. Tickets £25.00. Click here.

Edinburgh's Hogmanay is one of Edinburgh's eleven festivals. It was first created in 1993 and has turned the capital into the Home of Hogmanay with 3.25 million party people enjoying the entertainment in the last 30 years.

- Edinburgh based producers Unique Events & Assembly Festival joined forces in 2022 to form UniqueAssembly, and are contracted to create and produce the Edinburgh's Hogmanay festival until 2024
- Edinburgh's Hogmanay 2023/24 is a key part of Scotland's winter tourism calendar, generating more than £48 million in economic benefit, with over 85,000 people anticipated to attend events in the city for the four-day celebrations

Festival Directors for UniqueAssembly who produce Edinburgh's Hogmanay on behalf of City of Edinburgh Council said: "It's a particularly special year as we mark the 30th anniversary of Edinburgh's Hogmanay with a spectacular four-day programme jam-packed with events. We're thrilled to bring back traditional Hogmanay events such as the Torchlight Procession and the original indoor Hogmanay party the New Year Revels, as well as welcoming this year's incredible headliners Pulp to entertain the Concert in the Gardens. Whether you're heading along for a disco dance at the Night Afore, a family ceilidh at Bairns New Year Revels or enjoying some laughs at Ho-Ho-Hogmanay, we're looking forward to welcoming old friends and new across this year's events."

Council Leader Cammy Day said: "I'm sure I speak for the whole city when I say how excited I am for the 30th anniversary edition of Edinburgh's Hogmanay.

"From the incredible Torchlight Procession through to Pulp seeing us into 2024 and so much more we're really fortunate to have such excellent events on offer for our residents and visitors. The First Footin' showcases an excellent range of free music and performance from Scottish rap artists to jazz, alt-rock and more.

“Not only is Hogmanay an Edinburgh institution but it is also a major contributor to our city’s economy, providing jobs and commercial opportunities for our local residents and businesses.

“This is a time where we can celebrate the best of our city as one-year closes and look ahead with pride and positivity to the next. I want to thank the organisers, our partners and of course Council colleagues who have worked tirelessly on this event and will continue to in the coming days.

“I wish everyone in the Capital a fantastic Hogmanay and a very happy New Year.”
