

Five things you need to know today

20mph conference in Edinburgh today

It is a while since Edinburgh introduced its first 20mph zone, and today there will be a conference at the City Chambers to discuss how to roll this out to the rest of the country.

Keynote speaker the Minister for Transport Fiona Hyslop will speak about plans for the way this strategy can be implemented. The 20's Plenty for Scotland Conference will have a keynote address on 20mph implementation decisions. With the Scottish Government already pledging that "all appropriate roads in built up areas will have a safer speed limit of 20 mph by 2025", the Minister will announce how Scotland will deliver on its commitment. This will be supported by a presentation from Transport Scotland.

Eyre Place Lane development

Councillors refused unanimously two applications by CA Ventures for purpose built student accommodation and townhouses on an empty site at Eyre Place Lane following a hearing which was three hours long.

This is the second time that the developer has made applications for planning permission on the former Jewsons site, the first two having been refused by the Government Reporter on appeal. This time, even though the number of storeys was reduced, bed spaces reduced by three and two townhouses scrapped, there were even more objections – around 450 in all – than the first time when residents did not get the opportunity to have their say. The developers went straight to the Scottish Government Reporter when it became clear to them that the council had failed to decide the applications within relevant time limits.

It was clear from discussion during the meeting that councillors felt the developers had not addressed issues raised by the Government Reporter, and nor had they addressed any of the matters raised by residents. As well as this in light of the recent declaration of a housing emergency by the council these applications did not provide for "sufficient residential housing".

Residents were represented by Hannah and Chris Edwards and Scott Baxter. Hannah explained some of the shortcomings of the applications. She said: "There's been a history of major errors in every daylight study submitted by the applicant.

"In the previous application, existing buildings were removed to run the calculations. This was exposed as the data showed many residential windows receiving more daylight in the shadow of the proposed 6-storey block. The study had to be corrected and resubmitted."

There was also an objection on the grounds of privacy and noise. Chris said: "It's clearly the wrong location to have two large roof terraces designed for socialising at both ends of the development, so close to many homes. Noise at a higher level travels and so any noise nuisance would be far-reaching. There are 159 flats and townhouses within 70m of the roof terraces."

The fact that the development was made up entirely of studio flats and not cluster (or shared) flats was also a concern for councillors.

Convener Hal Osler who runs these meetings to very tight time limits said she struggled to approve the application. Cllr Osler said: "I don't think there is acceptable amenity and I also have concern about the liveable space in the area as well in terms of the reduction of space in the lane and what is needed to fit these things in, and whether that is suitable."

Cllr Chas Booth said: "What we have heard from residents is that they are keen to see development on this site – but appropriate development, development that meets the needs of the communities, and also complies with our Local Development Plan. Unfortunately I think that this application before us does neither of those things. So I would appeal to the developers, please go away and listen to the local community, listen to their concerns and come back with an application that meets the needs of the local community while also complying with our Local Development Plan, and we will look on it a lot more favourably.”

And former Planning Convener, Cllr Neil Gardner, said: “It does seem difficult to support the application in its current form.”

During their presentation Paul Scott of Scott Hobbs who represents the student housing developer said that if the council keeps on rejecting this kind of applications for student housing – “but it is a form of housing, then that housing emergency will not go away any time soon”.

Culture and Communities Committee

Today the council's Culture and Communities Committee meets at the City Chambers. Anyone can attend the meeting or watch online. The papers are here. The matters to be discussed are wide-ranging.

Gorgie City Farm update

EVOC is coordinating the possible revival of the Gorgie Farm Site and have just completed Phase One of a consultation to which they received more than 400 responses.

They also conducted some guided walks round the site followed by conversations around the questions posed in the survey.

A spokesperson said: “We are developing an opportunity for children at Dalry Primary School to participate in the consultation. This will happen in the New Year and will link with Phase Two.

“We will continue engagement opportunities through December whilst analysing the responses. We will hope to share a summary report Christmas.”

The questions included in the consultation were:

- What would make you come to the farm? (For example, this could include specific activities, events, festivals, talks, classes, educational opportunities, facilities, etc)
- What facilities would you like to see? (For example, this could include toilets, cafe, internet/WIFI access.
- What activities would you like to see? (For example, this could include gardening, yoga, exercise, cooking, classes, tours, walks, etc)
- What would make you stay for a longer period? (For example, this could include activities, activities, facilities, cafe, seating, shelters, etc)
- Would you pay to support it? (For example, this could include an optional donation, membership scheme, if yes please indicate how much you would feel is an appropriate amount/fee
- What do you think the community needs?
- Could you help us? How would you like to get involved and support the farm or work with us?

Phase Two of the consultation will be conducted in January/February 2024.

Twice as much Scottish art for everyone to see

By PHYLLIS STEPHEN

THE NEW SCOTTISH galleries at the National have just opened to the public with more art on display than ever before.

This marks the completion of a complex seven year building project costing £38.62 million, during which time the National Gallery remained open, but was in large part a building site, especially when the excavation on the south of the site was being carried out. The complexity of the site, below two Grade A listed buildings and above the three tunnels on the Edinburgh to Glasgow railway line was considerable.

Display space has doubled in the dozen galleries showing artworks from the national collection. The Monarch of the Glen has taken up its rightful position in the new space, along with works by William McTaggart, Anne Redpath, Phoebe Anna Traquair, Charles Rennie Mackintosh and the Glasgow Boys and the Glasgow Girls.

Director-General of National Galleries Scotland Sir John Leighton said: "For the first time, there are logical routes through the complex, a natural flow, no more dead ends, no more retracing your steps. We wanted to transform the experience for visitors to make it more accessible and we wanted to make it easier to circulate through a complex set of buildings and levels, but absolutely key to this project was to be able to show the Scottish collection with pride and ambition. And we feel we have achieved those aims."

Riding of the Marches

Lord Provost saddling up in September

By PHYLIS STEPHEN

THE EDINBURGH Riding of the Marches will take place on 10 September in a return to the Royal Mile after a three year gap, and this year the Lord Provost, the Provost Consort and the Council Leader will all be on horseback.

The spectacle is more than just a bunch of riders taking over the city centre. This is a reenactment of the ancient custom of marching the boundaries, a symbolic tradition of inspecting the Common Land of Edinburgh which dates back to at least 1579.

This year the entertainment on the Royal Mile will begin at 12.30pm with music and stunt performances. The riders will complete their morning of high-energy gallops, starting at the Drum Estate in the south of the city, before making their way through the streets through Holyrood Park and proceeding up The Royal Mile from Holyrood Palace at around 3.30pm.

And in a break from recent tradition, the Rt Hon Lord Provost and Lord Lieutenant, Robert Aldridge, who will be joining the event for the first time, will be making the journey up the Royal Mile on horseback, accompanied by the Lord Provost's Consort, Colin Cunningham, and by the Council Leader Cammy Day.

Clr Day admitted to bribing the horses with treats. He said: "I have been taking riding lessons. I have done a little horse riding more than 20 years ago so I would say I am a real beginner."

Capital firm living the Barbie dream

By PHYLLIS STEPHEN

RACHEL HANRETTY started her business, Mademoiselle Macaron, in Edinburgh in 2013. Now some ten years later her trademark products - beautiful macarons - have a starring role in the very pink Greta Gerwig directed blockbuster movie of this summer, Barbie.

The pink delicacies were ordered in five flavours to be delivered to Warner Brothers Studio in Leavesdon, and not just as a perk for the cast, but to appear in a café in Barbie Land.

This was easy for the company based in Bonnington which produces more than 30,000 macarons each week. Rachel learned how to craft the sweet treat in Paris where she first tasted a vanilla macaron on the Champs-Élysées. She attended the Alain Ducasse cookery school in the French capital to perfect making the macarons which is now the centre of her business.

Mademoiselle Macaron products have been on screen before. They appeared on Strictly Come Dancing in 2021 during a dance based in a bakery when a tall tower of macarons appeared on the set. And there is at least one big name that can be revealed as a macaron lover. Courtney Love is a repeat customer who orders their vegan product - and no, we don't know how they make them - the recipe is secret. And in exciting news the business is commissioned to colour match the new Revlon lipstick range in just the right shade.

The King's Men

The Royal Company of Archers competed in The Edinburgh Arrow, displaying their skills as The King's Bodyguard in Scotland

By PHYLIS STEPHEN

EDINBURGH USUALLY hosts events during Royal Week in early July, but this year the Royal Honours of Scotland will be presented to His Majesty King Charles III and Her Majesty Queen Camilla during their first visit to Scotland since the Coronation. Thousands are expected to line the Royal Mile on 5 July.

The Honours of Scotland consist of the Crown, the Sceptre and the new Elizabeth Sword crafted in memory of the late Queen. The State Sword is too fragile for public use, so a new one has been made. The Stone of Destiny will also be in St Giles' for the service which will be broadcast live on TV.

The Royal Company of Archers are the Sovereign's Bodyguard in Scotland and each year are invited by the Lord Provost to compete for the Edinburgh Arrow on Bruntsfield Links. Our photo shows archer Ian Davie taking his turn.

Alan Simpson, OBE, DL, is a captain in The Royal Company. He said: "The Edinburgh Arrow was won by Colonel Charlie Wallace which was very satisfactory as he is the Secretary who does all the work. He was central in organising all the parades in September last year for the Queen's funeral, then for the Coronation and he has been working flat out on the parades to welcome His Majesty to Holyrood Palace and to St Giles as well.

"Everybody was delighted that he won. The person who wins the most points wins the arrow and Charlie "hit the clout" twice - which is no mean feat from 180 yards."

In total during Royal Week there will be around 250 archers on parade.

Here's looking at ewe

RHS artists find their inner sheep for show

By PHYLIS STEPHEN

IT'S JUNE AND that means it is time to get ready for the annual Royal Highland Show at Ingliston which is sponsored by Royal Bank of Scotland.

To publicise the event the Royal Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland (RHASS) commissioned "Flock to the Show", a public art trail made up of fibreglass sheep sculptures which are on tour in Edinburgh and Lothians.

Rosie (photographed left) had incredible fun getting to know these two sculptures at Port Edgar marina.

On the left is Eaha designed by Central Scotland artist Anna Bilyk and sponsored by Galloway MacLeod. Anna said her inspiration came from a mixture of landscape and process. She said: "The images are all inspired from travels and surrounding landscapes brought together and merged into a type of visual story. The style of the design comes from the process and style I use to design images for lino printmaking."

On the right Davy Baa-wie was designed by Fife knitwear designer, Jennifer McHardy, and sponsored by Macklin Motors. Jennifer said she just loves David Bowie. She said: "he is a true music and style icon, the inspiration for my sheep design came from the iconic knitted jumpsuit designed by Kansai Yamamoto for David Bowie during the Ziggy Stardust era worn by him in 1974."

FIVE PORTOBELLO rowers are finding their land legs after an epic 39 day 3,000 mile journey across the Atlantic which raised more than £30,000 for young persons' charities. The crew of Atlantic Body & Soul completed the world's toughest rowing test, the Talisker Whisky Atlantic Challenge, overcoming 20ft waves and an overnight power outage when they had to hand steer the boat in pitch darkness. Sean Watters, Matt Callia, Ed van der Ven, Alec Martin and Cal MacAninch - all members of Eastern Amateur Coastal Rowing

Club - sailed into English Harbour in Antigua to a hero's welcome and the sound of the bagpipes - a fitting end to a six week journey from La Gomera in the Canary Islands. Overcoming physical and mental exhaustion, the quintet and hundreds of supporters have raised much needed funds for two charities which support young people, Body & Soul and The Junction. Full story page eight

Down the line...

Robert Burns has pride of place in Leith

By PHYLLIS STEPHEN

THE FINAL PIECE of track has now been laid completing the length of tramline where trams will begin to carry passengers in spring this year.

Two-way traffic will run up and down Leith Walk this month following a short delay due to the cold snap just before Christmas, but all main infrastructure is now complete and testing and commissioning will begin soon.

We are told to expect to see trams running on the line any minute, although passengers will have to wait just a little longer until Edinburgh Trams begins its new service from Newhaven all the way through the city centre and on to Edinburgh Airport.

The 125-year-old statue of Rabbin Burns will become even more of a focal point as the tram passes him as it goes down Constitution Street. Rabbin was given a spruce up during the tramworks and returned to his rightful place in January last year complete with a new time capsule concealed in the plinth.

This month it will be time to celebrate the Bard's birthday with four days of Burns&Beyond events at Assembly Rooms.
