

Missing woman – police appeal for help

Police in Edinburgh are appealing for help to trace Alison Campbell, 50, who has been reported missing.

Alison was last seen leaving a property in Murrayfield Avenue around 3.10am on Tuesday, 6 February, and drove away in her red Toyota Aygo.

She is described as 5ft 3, of very slim build, with straight shoulder length brown hair.

She is believed to be wearing a navy blue puffer jacket, a bright pink knitted scarf and black leather ankle boots. She normally wears a gold ring with a black onyx stone on her right hand.

Officers have traced Alison's car in the Cramond beach area and a search is ongoing there.

Inspector Dougal Begg said: "Alison's family are extremely concerned about her wellbeing and we are asking members of the public to keep a look out and report any sightings to police.

"Officers and the Coastguard are carrying out searches in the Cramond beach area and would urge anyone who has been there today to consider whether they may have seen a woman matching Alison's description.

"Anyone with information is asked to contact Police Scotland on 101, quoting incident number 0535 of Tuesday, 6 February, 2024."
