

Edinburgh Science Festival – is it time to spring clean space?

As part of Edinburgh Science Festival 2024 there will be a photography exhibition unveiled at The Mound on Friday entitled ‘Our Fragile Space: Protecting the Near-Space Environment’.

Photographer Max Alexander invites visitors on a journey to explore the issue of debris and rubbish in space, highlighting that satellite crowding is fast becoming an issue. He also wants people to think of the stewardship of the fragile environment.

The exhibition runs from 8 March until 14 April and it is free.

Edinburgh Science Festival runs from 30 March until 8 April. The programme of events can be found here.

