

Crash at Craigleith Junction

A crash occurred at Craigleith Junction on Queensferry Road on Wednesday morning just after 7am.

A Scottish Ambulance Service spokesperson said: "We received a call at 0707 hours today to attend an incident on Queensferry Road in Edinburgh. We dispatched one ambulance and a rapid response vehicle to the scene. We transported one female patient to New Edinburgh Royal Infirmary."

Police have reported that the road is now fully reopened.

2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Police take scans of the road. Crash between the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Police take scans of the road. Crash between the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Police take scans of the road. Crash between the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

17/4/2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Crash involving the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

17/4/2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Crash involving the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

17/4/2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Crash involving the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.

17/4/2024

Picture Alan Simpson

Crash involving the driver of a lorry and a pedestrian at the junction of South Groathill Avenue and Queensferry Rd South in Edinburgh.