

Rebus author gave his blessing to wedding suite

Couples looking to secure a local wedding venue this year or next could end up having their ceremony and/or reception in a bridal suite officially opened by author and Fifer, Sir Ian Rankin, OBE, twenty five years ago.

The Old Manor Hotel at Lundin Links, now under the ownership of the Wallace family of Pettycur Bay Holiday Park, still displays a plaque proudly proclaiming that the famous author opened its brand new conference and banqueting suite in 1999.

“The plaque has never been taken down, and to be honest, why would we,” said Stephen Carleschi, Operations Director at the Old Manor Hotel. “We realised the other day, whilst it was being dusted actually, that it was twenty five years ago since it went up. We’re sure at the time that it was a huge coup for the Old Manor to have Ian Rankin come and make a personal appearance.”

“Over the past twenty five years, the function suite has held many hundreds of weddings. Now that the Wallace family has invested a great deal of money in the Hotel, carrying out a huge refurbishment, we hope to hold many more! We have selected dates left for this year, with various great value packages available. Contact our Wedding Co-Ordinator to find out more. This may suit a couple who have not yet managed to book a venue, or indeed are huge Rebus fans!”

“We will give you the full tour of the facilities, and can discuss the wedding packages in more detail.”
