

Missing man traced safe and well say police

Police have thanked the public and media for helping trace 50-year-old David Weir who reported missing from Newcastleton in the Scottish Borders.

Officers in the Scottish Borders issued an appeal this morning following concern for his welfare.

It was thought that Mr Weir may have travelled to Edinburgh.

A Police Scotland spokesperson said: "David Weir who was reported missing from Newcastleton in the Scottish Borders has been traced safe and well.

"The media and members of the public are thanked for their assistance with this matter.