

Nick Montgomery and Sergio Raimundo join Ange Postecoglou's coaching team at Spurs

Former Hibs boss Nick Montgomery and his number two Sergio Raimundo have joined Ange Postecoglou's coaching team at Tottenham Hotspur.

Montgomery was sacked by Hibs in May just eight months after replacing Lee Johnson as head coach.

Despite failing to make the top six at Easter Road, Montgomery remains highly thought of in the game after his success with Central Coast Mariners, where he guided the club to the A-League title in 2023.

The pair will begin work at the start of pre-season. Raimondo's appointment is subject to a work permit.

Head Coach Ange Postecoglou said: "It's also great to have Nick and Sergio join the Club, and they will add to the talented coaches we already have on the staff here.

"Both Nick and Sergio have a wealth of coaching experience over a number of years. They have already demonstrated a strong desire to both develop young talent and implement a football style that I believe will further strengthen the environment we have established. I'm looking forward to working with them.”
