

Hibs awaiting result of Chris Cadden scan

Chris Cadden who came off midway through the first half as a precaution in Hibs victory over Elgin City on Saturday is now awaiting the results of a scan.

And Hibs Head Coach David Gray also provided an update on Elie Youan and Harry McKirdy who were both left out of the matchday squad on Saturday

Speaking ahead of tomorrow's home game against Queens Park, Gray told Hibs TV: "Cadds came off early in the game which was disappointing, but we think he has caught that one early enough.

"We don't want to take any chances – especially at this stage of the season – so we will get that scanned just to make sure we know what we are dealing with. Once we get the results back we will put a plan in place, but he is positive about how he feels on that."

Harry McKirdy and Elie Youan (illness) were also left out of the matchday squad on Saturday, with Gray providing the latest update on the two forwards and their current progress.

"McKirdy is getting there everyday. This one will come slightly too soon for him, but he is days away. He stepped it up in training today so I fully expect him to be available for the weekend.

"Elie Youan is back in training this morning after his illness. He is feeling better, but we just need to see how his body reacts to training and monitor that. Apart from that, the rest of the boys are all fit and ready to go.”
